Success Stories – as clients speak “...”

“I am Shiv Devi, a native of Gopiganj, just few kilometers away from the Sangam city of Allahabad. There was a drought in our village some 2 years back, when our entire cultivation was hit badly. We got affected adversely on financial front as the major source for our income was from farming, besides selling milk.

Things were getting worse day by day and we were struggling for our daily needs.

But with the grace of God, one day my neighbour told me about Utkarsh giving small loans.

She helped me to meet an Utkarsh official who briefed me the producer to avail the loan.

With the initial loan of ₹ 12,000 I purchased seeds and fertilizer and with subsequent loan of ₹ 18,000, I purchased a cow and expanded our business of selling milk.

Slowly and gradually our farming started providing better yield, our milk business gained stability but still we had to go long to cover our loss from the drought.

To increase the source of earning, I decided to start a new business of grocery shop for which I took subsequent loan of ₹ 22,000. By buying and selling grocery items, milk and earnings from agriculture, we started saving ₹1,000 to ₹1,500 monthly after meeting all our expenses.

Recently, I have availed a loan of ₹ 25,000 and have purchased another cow. My daughters Neha and Pooja are studying in a good school now.

Our happy days are back again, we thank Utkarsh which has supported us at time when we needed it the most. My family feels good in getting timely linkages with Utkarsh on our all credit requirements.”

ET Q&A GOVIND SINGH
Managing Director, Utkarsh Small Finance Bank

'Our Book Size will Be ₹10,000 Cr in 5 Years'

Utkarsh Small Finance Bank is looking to tap into multiple opportunities after it started operations in January as the first commercial bank headquartered in the Hindi heartland, its managing director Govind Singh told Joel Rebellio in an interview. It was among the 10 entities which were given an in-principle approval by the Reserve Bank of India in September 2015 to start a new kind of banks lending to small businesses. Edited excerpts:

How do you see this opportunity to operate a small finance bank?
We have an existing client base but as an MFI (microfinance institution), we could only give loans. As a bank, we can offer all products. An NBFC (non-banking financial company) requires a licence for each financing activity. We can now cater to all types of customer segments. So, in terms of opportunity it's huge in the core geography of Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and the eastern India we are operating in. It's a win-win for all – our clients require it, we need more clients and we can offer more products to our clients. We are also looking at MSME (micro, small and medium enterprises) with a ₹1-lakh ticket size on average right now. Our MSME loan book is just ₹80 crore. We are looking at a higher ticket range, which we have not done so far. In housing also, we have started a pilot and are also looking at commercial-vehicle financing in a year's time, along with two-

ON COST OF FUNDS
Our cost of funds is more than 12% because we have to take loans from banks. It used to be in the 13.5% to 14% range a year ago

We expect it to come down to 9-9.5% in the next one year depending on how quickly we can garner deposits. It will also be broad-based because we will have a few lakh depositors. My focus will be on lower and middle segment but it will be broad-based with many products.

not for consumption but for income generation. As long as there is an activity that is sustainable and scalable, and which requires funding, we are willing to support it. In villages, you have clusters like animal husbandry in Mirzapur; in Varanasi, there is a loom business. There are some clusters where even from a credit angle we have better expertise. Our preference is for those businesses. But it does not mean that we won't fund outside the cluster. This fiscal year we are targeting more than ₹300 crore from MSME. MSME, together with housing and CV (commercial vehicles), will be in the range of ₹3,000 crore in five years' time. Our book size will be around ₹10,000 crore in five years from ₹1,800 crore now. 35% of our book will come from MSME and 12-15% from personal and other loans; 50% of the loans will come from non-microfinance.

How do you judge the credit profile of the first-time borrowers?
We create a rough financial statement by asking them about their income, expenses and business, which is what the established banks don't do. That is where our expertise comes handy. Getting foolproof accounting books is difficult. We do it on our own. Our sales team and credit team meet the people and see their activity, and make their assessment on that basis. That's why it is not a balance sheet assessment. Our people look at cash flows and try to match to what the borrower is saying. Our employees are trained specially for this.

Aim is to become a universal bank after 5 years: Utkarsh CEO

"We expect the cost of funds to reduce another 150 bps in the next one year"

MANISH SAHA
Utkarsh Small Finance Bank, which started offering its range of products and services from Friday, is taking steps to become a universal bank in five years, says its MD and CEO, Govind Singh. Excerpts from an interview:

Now that the bank is offering all its products and services to the customers, how will it impact your cost of funds?
 ■ Now that we can accept public deposits, our cost of funds will come down. As a micro finance institution, our cost of funds was 12.5%. Since the soft launch — when products and services are offered to employees and customers in a restricted manner — in January, we have already mobilised ₹480 crore of deposits and have seen cost of funds coming

There will be some more capital infusion this month capability to offer, say, ₹100 crore loan. So, on the lending side, our ticket size will be continue to be low, we will continue to lend in the four segments — microfinance, micros, small and medium enterprises, affordable housing and agriculture.

On the liability side, we are going for all kinds of accounts from all types of customers.

Are you getting a scheduled bank status?
 ■ The process is on. For small finance banks, RBI comes for an inspection of the systems and processes. Once they have attained a certain level, they recommend it to finance ministry. Once the ministry approves, RBI includes it in the second schedule. The advantage of a scheduled bank is that the universe, for an institution that can keep deposits, expands. There are a lot of institutions who only deal with unscheduled banks. So, the cost of funds could some time. We also have some operations in Madhya Pradesh with a regional office in Jabalpur. On the liability side, we have gone for some large locations also, such as Lucknow and Kanpur. We have some presence in Haryana and in Mumbai, we have opened a branch and have secured a license for Kolkata also.

What is the next milestone for the bank?
 ■ Five years down the line, our aim is to become a universal bank. There are some advantages of a universal bank such as lower capital adequacy requirement. In the interim, we will keep enhancing our product mix; we could look at gold loans, for example. In five years we will have a much bigger customer base, a wider range of product and services. We are planning our risk structure, governance structure in line with the best practices.
